

Good day,

As the Government of Canada has recently opened applications for the Canada Emergency Response Benefit (CERB) we have included links on where to apply for the benefit, as well as important dates for the application process. As individual cases may vary we recommend each individual review their own eligibility for the benefit separately. To do this please click on the first link to the Government of Canada website and review the eligibility criteria and if you feel you qualify please follow the application process included in the first link. If you have any questions we have included a second link to some general questions on the CERB the Government of Canada has answers to.
